SCOPE OF WORK

1. Narrative / Owners Objectives

Having efficient and effective wastewater treatment facilities serves as the basis for economic development. Without the required upgrades as described below, the Nation will be constrained, unable to expand development, and may be unable to serve the needs of the Nation in the current public health emergency. The current wastewater treatment plant is 17 years old and is not operating efficiently to meet effluent requirements for the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). While we have managed to maintain our current wastewater treatment plant with limited financial resources, there continues to be an urgent need for upgrades to prevent the imminent threat of a system failure in the near future.

The lagoon wastewater treatment system would serve the tribal Government Center, the Bingo Hall, Building Maintenance, and the culturally historic Community Building. These buildings are critical for PBPN operations, particularly during a public health emergency such as COVID-19. If an outbreak of COVID-19 were to spread on the reservation, the Bingo Hall would be an emergency designated shelter location to assist with social distancing, and the government buildings would be required to be operational in order to serve the public’s needs. If these buildings were to see increased usage, the current wastewater treatment plant would be at capacity.

Expanding the capacity of the plant would also address social and economic concerns of the Tribe by creating the necessary infrastructure needed to establish future economic development on Tribal Lands to create economic self-sufficiency. The Tribe plans to increase capacity of its government, its people, and its organization; however, without foundational infrastructure (e.g., upgraded and expanded wastewater treatment plant) the Tribe will not be able to increase capacity. An upgraded and expanded wastewater treatment plant sits at the forefront of economic development, for without effective flow, good water quality, and efficient pump run times economic development will be stymied.

PBPN will follow its approved Procurement policies and procedures to conduct an open bid process in selecting firms with architectural and engineering services for the design portion of the project, and for qualified contractors and installers for the installation of the project based on the design documents.
